IV. HOFMA VISION PRESENTATION
Nederveld senior consultant, Jamie Walter, provided a PowerPoint presentation regarding recommendations for the continued development of Hofma Park and Preserve, particularly the so-called Witteveen farm property and the Wolf property.

Development costs for the Witteveen farm property – as presented – are estimated at about $1 million. Development costs for the Wolf property – as presented – are estimated at about $5 million.

V. DISCUSSION
Comments included the following:

1. Concern with including a proposed mountain bike trail on the Witteveen farm property due to the location being in an environmentally sensitive area;
2. Concern with the cost of the proposed improvements and a desire to phase any development (i.e., trying to do too much);
3. Concern with the using of a lighted trail on the Witteveen farm property since it could become an attractive nuisance;
4. Concern with the amount of trails developed on the Wolf property because – as presented – certain trails seem duplicative;
5. Concern with the parking design on the Wolf property because it may force people to cross the roadway and impact pedestrian safety;
6. Request that trails and/or playground areas be named after the original owner of the Wolf property;
7. Support for the proposed sports fields because of a need for additional facilities;
8. Concern with current trail maintenance/construction in Hofma Preserve, to which VerBerkmoes responded;
9. Support for developing trails for mountain bikes, especially for the youth;
10. Read a portion of the Witteveen Trust that described the intended development of the land and supported keeping the Witteveen farm property in a more natural state;
11. Concern that the two-way design of the entry into the Wolf property/Hofma Park would not function well; and,
12. Recommended that the “pickleball courts” be separated “generationally” from the other facilities.
